

Family Trip

During our family trip, we stopped at the entrance of a famous theme park and took a group photo before going inside. The large gate behind us displayed the official name of the park in bold capital letters, making it clearly visible in the picture.

Although the travel diary does not mention the name directly, it can be identified by reading the text shown on the entrance sign in the accompanying image. The rest of the day was spent exploring different attractions and taking more photos around the park.

Birthday Celebration

A birthday celebration was held for one of our close friends. Along with the gifts, there was a greeting card placed on the table.

The card contained a short message printed in large decorative letters that could easily be read from the photograph. The written text itself is not repeated anywhere in this document, so readers need to examine the accompanying image if they want to know exactly what the card says. Everyone signed the back of the card before the party ended.